

FRENCH TROOPS CAUGHT IN TRAP

Timely Arrival of General
Drude Saves De Fretoy's
Column From Slaughter.

MOORS WERE CLOSING IN
FURIOUS CHARGE OF FRENCH
CAVALRY.

Casablanca, Oct. 20.—(Via Tangier, Oct. 21.)—The timely arrival of General Drude with reinforcements alone saved Colonel De Fretoy's reconnoitering column from annihilation yesterday near Taddert. The troops, which were sent out to search for the body of a Frenchman named Kunzler, who had wandered from the camp and was murdered, consisted of a detachment of cavalry, two companies of infantry and a section of rapid-fire guns. On arriving at Alvarez, a group of sixty Moorish soldiers were seen on top of a mound. Colonel De Fretoy ordered a squad of Algerian cavalry to give chase, and a hot pursuit was kept up for about three miles, when suddenly the hills beyond were seen to be swarming with horsemen.

Troops in a Trap.

The Algerian troops, realizing that they had fallen into a trap, retired slowly. Colonel De Fretoy, when he reached his advance force, occupied a position with the infantry and spurs in reserve behind the walls of Marabout tombs, employing a force of Chasseurs d'Afrique and Algerian irregulars to the northeast. The Moors, who were constantly being reinforced, then began a circling movement with the object of turning the French position, but were momentarily checked by the sustained fire of the infantry and a hail of bullets from the rapid-fire guns. Nevertheless, the situation was growing more critical.

Drude's Timely Arrival.

Fully 5,000 white-clad Moorish warriors threatened to overwhelm Colonel De Fretoy's column when General Drude, who arrived upon the Moorish flank unperceived with two companies of infantry, two batteries of field guns and another section of rapid-fire gun artillery, opened on the enemy with all his guns. The Moors were taken completely by surprise and, taking advantage of the confusion into which the attack was thrown, General Drude quickly massed and launched his cavalry into a furious charge into the thick of the Marabout tombs, hand-to-hand fighting, the French troops and Algerian irregulars sabering the enemy right and left.

French Losses.

The French losses, which were all sustained during the charge, were: Captain Iher, killed while leading his squadron; Jarjay, a private, who was wounded and carried by his frantic horse into the thick of the enemy, by whom he was decapitated and horribly mutilated; and another private who was killed in the hand-to-hand fighting. Over sixty Moors were left dead on the field, the majority being killed by sabres.

In addition to the officer and two men killed and nine who were wounded, the French lost seven horses killed and seventeen wounded.

WOMAN IN DISTRESS

Says Husband Refuses Support When
She and Children Need Assistance.

A woman with a small child in her arms entered the police station last evening and asked if anything could be done to compel her husband to furnish her with food and lodging. She said she was the wife of Marion F. Curtis, who is employed by Curtis & Turner at 25 East Second South. She said she married him about four years ago. She recited a long tale of marital infidelities, chief among which was the fact that the husband would not support her and her three children, two of them being by a former wife. She said she had been living at Moroni for a year and it was so that he sent her no money. She went to work in the best fields and earned enough to bring herself and the children to Salt Lake.

Mrs. Curtis arrived here late yesterday afternoon, and she says, she met with a very odd reception by her husband. He told her, she said, that if she wanted him to support her, she would have to return at once to Moroni, and when she refused to do this he declined to buy her a meal or to provide her with a place to sleep. He took his two children, she says, and left, and she called on the police for assistance.

Mrs. Curtis was provided with the necessary comforts by the police department pending an investigation.

GEMS STILL MISSING.

No Clue to Thief Who Stole Precious
Stones at Wilson.

Up to a late hour last night the police department had found any clue to the whereabouts of $700 worth of diamonds alleged to have been stolen from Jacob Heilbron in the writing room of the Wilson hotel. Detectives Shannon and Wilson are working on the case. Mr. Heilbron is a diamond broker for an Attleboro, Mass., and he left a case containing twenty-five diamonds and a pearl in the desk while he went to mail a letter. When he returned he found the stones missing.

ORIGIN OF SEDAN CHAIR.

(London Chronicle.)

Perhaps some expert in the Siamese language will tell us what is its word for "sedan chair." When the King of Siam's ministers, protesting against his majesty's favor toward motoring, suggested recently that "the royal sedan chair" was always at his disposal it is probable that they used a word reminiscent of the French town.

For it is from the scene of Napoleon III's collapse that the sedan chair takes its name, and perhaps remote posterity will suppose that it had some connection with that event. But Sedan first produced these conveyances centuries ago and they were seen in England in 1581. One used by James I's Buckingham provoked great popular outcry against the employment of men as beasts of burden. Sir S. Duncombe is credited with having introduced them to London in 1624.

"Pardon me, but could I see the thief that was arrested last night?" a man asked the sergeant.

"Really, sir, you cannot; what communication would you like to make to him?"

"Oh, nothing; it is only that as it was my house he robbed, I wanted to ask him how he managed to enter without waking my wife. When I come home late at night I never succeed in doing so."

SALT LAKE BOYS' BAND ENTERTAINS LARGE AUDIENCE AT CONCERT

For the first time since their return from their triumphal tour of the eastern states, the members of the Salt Lake Juvenile band yesterday afternoon entertained their friends and the public at a concert in the Grand theatre. The affair was a marked success in every respect. The theatre was fairly well filled, and the program was given in a superb manner. The audience was held by the boys from the beginning, and at times the applause was long continued and hearty.

After listening to the music it no longer seemed strange to them that the boys met with the remarkable reception everywhere in the east which were accorded them, for certain it is that these youngsters are entitled to every word of praise that has been said about them, and more.

In their work yesterday the lads performed like veterans. Under the direction of L. P. Christensen, who has brought the band to its high state of perfection, there was every evidence of careful and faithful training. Altogether, the band concert yesterday afternoon was a most creditable and enjoyable affair. Many of the proud mothers and sisters of the boys were in the theatre to watch and listen with critical but loving eye and ear the work of the young musicians. These boys took part in yesterday's concert:

Conductor—Guy Alexander, Alva Baer, Vernon Hatch, Orson Hyde, Owen McAleer, Glen Sinclair.
Soloists—George Flashman, Clyde Hills, Frank Meyers, Fred Von Elm.
Baritone—Milo Daly, Guy Herrick.

MINING MAN DIVES THROUGH WINDOW IN QUEST OF TROUT IN AQUARIUM

An exhibition that was somewhat spectacular in its nature took place last night at midnight last night by J. K. Von Trump, a New York mining man, by diving through the window of the Vienna cafe, and swimming in quest of the trout that were slumbering on the ripples in the aquarium.

Prior to his hazardous dive Mr. Von Trump was standing somewhat unsteadily on the curb in front of the restaurant, waiting toward the placid trout. Where he had been before he took up his life before the eating house Mr. Von Trump was a waiter, but he was a waiter for trout and he continued to watch them, balancing alternately on his heels and on his toes.

There seems to have been something about the rhythmic motion of the rippling water in the aquarium that captivated him, and he, too, swayed to and fro. Each time he swayed forward a little farther than he went back until he had gained sufficient momentum. Then he went headlong toward the fish. The execution of the dive was almost perfect. The

DOG RACING UNPROFITABLE

William M. Biggs, a negro, has decided that it doesn't pay to be accommodating. He showed up at the police station last night and asked for the arrest of a dog named "Chitney," because he would not pay him his share of the winnings of some coursing dogs. William says that he agreed to work for Chitney for $20 a month and railroad fare. He was to be caretaker and general supervisor of the dogs owned by Chitney. They did not make $25 a month and 25 per cent of the winnings. Later he relinquished his claim to the dog, but Chitney refused to give him the quarter of the winnings, which were $7.50 gross, but even then, he says, his boss refused to give him the money. He was to see the prosecuting attorney this morning and secure a warrant.

BRANDS HIS WIFE A SHREW

Failing to Tame His Defiant and Belligerent Mate, Charles Kropf
Seeks Divorce.

Charles Kropf accuses his wife, Anna Kropf, of attacking him with pokers, knives and other weapons. He also says that she is adept in the use of naughty words, and that she not only swears at him, but at his children by a former marriage.

In order to free himself from his trouble of pacifying her at odd intervals, Kropf filed a suit in divorce yesterday in the district court, in which the above allegations are made.

In addition he asserts that his wife ever since their marriage, Aug. 14, 1906, "has treated him in a quarrelsome, defiant, insulting and contemptuous manner, and has never been friendly or affectionate with him."

This has greatly humiliated him and has caused considerable mental anguish, if the complaint is to be believed.

At various times, he says, that his wife has accused him of being intimate with other women and has told this to her friends.

Concerning the attacks made upon him with pokers and knives, he modestly assures the court that he has never received any great physical injury, but that this conduct on her part has caused him humiliation and mental distress, which he seems to think is much worse than a good beating. Notwithstanding this treatment, he remained true to her, and the complaint says that he secured employment at Eureka Aug. 1, 1907, and had the temerity to ask her to accompany him there. This she refused to do, and they have lived apart since.
